SQUARE FEET STUDIO TO DESIGN ITS OWN OFFICE, FOUR OTHERS AT INMAN ALLEY

ATLANTA, December 12, 2006 – Square Feet Studio, Inc., a small full-service architectural, planning and design firm, is set to design its own 1,650 sq. ft. office space under Leadership in Energy and Environmental (LEED) guidelines. The Atlanta-based firm is designing four other tenant spaces totally more than 11,000 sq. ft. at the Inman Alley development on Krog Street. Construction for its own space is slated to begin in January 2007 while others are already under construction.

The LEED Green Building Rating System™ is the nationally accepted benchmark for the design, construction, and operation of high performance green buildings. The certification reflects the firm's belief in enhancing the built environment through innovative and smart design. Its new office will be designed to maximize preserved natural lighting while using recycled-content materials ranging from bathroom tile to denim insulation and energy-efficient appliances.

Located in the heart of Historic Inman Park, Inman Alley was originally built as a cotton warehouse in the 1890s and was later bought as a production facility for the Clorox Company in 1941. Today, the redeveloped building fronts the proposed Beltline and is creatively adapted by an award winning team of planners and architects.

"Designing our office as our first LEED-commercial interior project is a great learning experience. We embrace the knowledge we continue to gain and we look forward to offering this service to our clients," said John Bencich, AIA, founder and principal of Square Feet Studio, Inc.

Square Feet Studio's design services have also been sought by several other building tenants including Fortuna Holdings, Twin Engines, Wood Partners and Wit, America.
