SQUARE FEET STUDIO DONATES SERVICES TO RENOVATE WESLEY FOUNDATION BUILDING AT GEORGIA TECH

ATLANTA, March 21, 2007 – Square Feet Studio, Inc., a small full-service architecture, planning and design firm, will donate a portion of its services to renovate the existing Wesley Foundation building on Georgia Tech's campus. The 5,200 sq. ft. interior renovation project is expected to be completed in the fall of 2007. The firm will have an opportunity to secure a second phase of the development – an addition to the worship area expected to be created before the building's 50th anniversary at Tech in 2010.

The current project focuses on upgrades to finishes and systems including the use of recycled content and environmentally friendly materials. The firm also plans to make significant improvements to the building's lighting quality and efficiency.

"As a Tech alumnus and continued supporter, I'm very excited to help in the renovations and preserve the overall character of this wonderful building so that future members of the Tech community can enjoy it," said John Bencich, AIA, founder and principal at Square Feet Studio, Inc. "We hope our commitment to service and sustainable design solutions will secure the second portion of this project."

"We're extremely excited because this initial renovation will enable us to extend our outreach programs and be more hospitable to neighboring church groups and schools," said Foundation Director Steve Fazenbaker.

Located at the corner of Fourth and Fowler Streets, the Wesley Foundation at Georgia Tech is a ministry of the United Methodist Church serving hundreds of students and alumni in the Georgia Tech community. Originally built in November 1960, the Wesley Foundation building provides the setting in which ministries of witness, nurture, outreach, fellowship, and stewardship are offered to students, faculty, staff, alumni and friends of the university.

Per its involvement in the 1% Solution, Square Feet Studio dedicates one percent of its time to pro bono work such as this project.
